“Big E” Returns Home

After a historic career lasting over 51 years, USS Enterprise arrived at Newport News Shipbuilding (NNS) this morning to complete her inactivation. Towed from Naval Station Norfolk to the shipyard, Enterprise had more than 100 shipbuilders on board who were involved with the construction and maintenance of this first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier.

“Enterprise set the stage for a long and distinguished career that transformed the U.S. Navy and put Newport News Shipbuilding on the map as the birthplace for America’s nuclear aircraft carriers,” said NNS President Matt Mulherin. “With Enterprise at Pier 2, we have our oldest nuclear carrier at one end of the shipyard, and our newest — Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78) — at the other end, in Dry Dock 12. These carriers represent our remarkable past and our bright future. They represent innovation, strength and diplomacy, and they represent the greatest shipbuilders in the world.”

As the only super carrier powered by eight nuclear reactors, Enterprise will be the first aircraft carrier to undergo an inactivation. NNS will defuel the ship’s eight reactors and prepare Enterprise for its transit to Puget Sound Naval Shipyards and Intermediate Maintenance Facility. The ship is scheduled to depart NNS in 2016.

Lloyd D. Joyner Sr. was among the shipbuilders who rode Enterprise from Norfolk to Newport News and one of only four shipbuilders on board who helped to build her. He started making molds for the ship in 1958. “From the beginning, everybody knew this ship was something special,” Joyner said. “It’s a privilege and an honor to be here today on her very last voyage.”

Capt. William C. Hamilton Jr., Enterprise’s commanding officer, addressed the shipbuilders aboard the “Big E,” referring to the ship as the poster child for the shipyard’s “Always Good Ships” motto. “What a fine ship it was, and what a great job you folks did building her and maintaining her. She is one of a kind. It is my privilege to deliver her back to you today. With dignity and respect, we will put this old war horse to bed.”

Career Pathways Wins State-wide Education Awards

Career Pathways received the State of Virginia Creating Excellence Award and the Region 2 of Virginia Creating Excellence Secondary Business and Industry Partnership Award from the Virginia Department of Education on June 13. Competing against other Virginia business partnerships, Career Pathways won the state-wide award for its partnership with Newport News City Public Schools’ Heritage High School.

“This partnership connects Hampton Roads students with hands-on experiences and real opportunities with Newport News Shipbuilding,” Superintendent of Public Instruction Patricia I. Wright said. “And it provides middle and high school teachers with an invaluable behind-the-scenes look at how the knowledge and skills taught in the classroom align with the demands of one of the commonwealth’s largest employers and manufacturers.”

L.E.A.R.N. will host an after work presentation with Jennifer Boykin, vice president of Engineering and Design, from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 23 in the VASCIC Auditorium. Prizes and refreshments will be available following the presentation.

The event is open to all employees and is by reservation only. Sign up on the L.E.A.R.N. Yardnet website.

Own a Piece of History

A new poster commemorating USS Enterprise’s final 2013 homecoming to Newport News Shipbuilding is now available in Bldg. 520 -1. The poster is a reprint of the ship’s original 1961 sea trials poster. To create the new artwork, Mike Dillard (O29) completely restored the photograph’s negative by removing dust and scratches from the film and reimagining the colors of the sky and water. The restored film was then scanned to make a digital file.

Second Quarter Security STAR Awarded

Shipbuilder Michael Damato (E86) has been awarded the second quarter Security STAR Award for 2013. The Security Department takes great pride in recognizing Damato for his outstanding performance of security responsibilities and for reprogramming the Industrial Security Program’s Self-Inspection Checklist Database (SICL). His actions are considered vital to the security of Newport News Shipbuilding and its employees.
Shipbuilders Share Thoughts About Big E’s Final Voyage

More than 100 Newport News shipbuilders had the “opportunity of a lifetime” — to be on board “Big E” during her last voyage. During the nearly eight-hour trip across the James River, shipbuilders reminisced about past experiences on USS Enterprise, watched a video about Enterprise, had the opportunity to speak with Capt. William C. Hamilton Jr., Enterprise’s commanding officer, and were entered in a drawing for several prizes.

Ford Shipbuilders Recognized for Safety

The X43 machinist crew of USS Gerald R. Ford CVN 78 was recognized on June 13 by leadership for their efforts of staying “accident-free” for more than 1,625 days. The team was provided lunch and t-shirts for their hard work.

X43 Construction Superintendent Lucas Hicks jump-started the event by congratulating the team. “One accident-free day is good, but going more than 1,625 consecutive days is amazing,” Hicks said. “My goal everyday is for you to go home the way you came. Clearly this team is doing something right.”

During lunch, the team discussed ways they have been able to maintain a perfect safety record. “We are taking the time to do our work right and always looking out for each other,” said Decarlo Keys (X43). “If you don’t feel rushed, you won’t hurt yourself or someone else.”

The team is looking forward to reaching another accident-free milestone in the near future.

Business Conduct Reps Attend DII Forum

Newport News Shipbuilding’s (NNS) Business Conduct Representatives attended the 2013 Defense Industry Initiative (DII) Best Practice Forum in Washington D.C. June 5-7. DII is an annual conference where Defense Industry Companies’ Ethics Officers come together to discuss leading ethical issues/topics and share best practices.

“I attended the forum this year for the first time,” said Jordan Boze (O82). “It was a great opportunity to network with ethics officers from outside companies within the Defense Industry and learn how our company’s policies and culture compare. It was great to see that our culture within NNS not only promotes ethical behavior but also strives to improve business conduct, making our company one that is respected in the industry. It was a beneficial event and I hope to attend again next year.”

Deadline to Submit Benefit Dependent Verification

The deadline for dependent verification for benefits is quickly approaching. Shipbuilders are reminded to submit the necessary documentation to verify that dependents are eligible for coverage. Any dependents who are not verified will be dropped from the plan by July 1, 2013 and will not be eligible for COBRA. Documentation can be uploaded online at www.hiibenefits.com, mailed to the Dependent Verification Center (PO Box 1403, Lincolnshire, IL 60069) or faxed to (866) 961-6881. Shipbuilders who have already received confirmation that their dependents have been verified can disregard this notice.

Changes to Short- and Long-Term Disability

Effective July 1, 2013, HII is transferring the administration of the Short-Term Disability (STD) and Long-Term Disability (LTD) plans for eligible salaried employees from Unum to Prudential. This provider change will not impact employees on STD and LTD with a date of disability prior to July 1, 2013. As a reminder, all eligible salaried employees must first contact the Leave of Absence (LOA) Administration Department (K24) at 688-3800 to request a medical leave of absence and initiate the claim process.

Staying Engaged

The annual Engagement Survey questions are designed to reveal the connections employees feel to their work, their teams and the company. Twice a month in Currents, shipbuilders will share what they believe are at the heart of each survey question and what is working well for their teams. In this issue, read thoughts on:

Q6: “There is someone at work who encourages my development.”

Jared Zacharias
O38 Non-Destructive Testing Inspector

“Because of our department’s uniqueness and all of the great things we are doing, when I read that question, I think about the ‘someone’ in the question actually being our department’s management. Every member of our department’s management team equally encourages the development of their employees. In my opinion, to successfully encourage an employee towards developing themselves in the work place, it’s very important to understand that person’s interests and personal goals. While the needs of the company are important, it is necessary to provide balance in regards to the company’s needs and the employee’s needs. It is my personal opinion that people are far more engaged with their work and improving their skill set when they are provided with opportunities that fit their interests and goals.”

What is working well for your team? “Our entire department has been very successful in this area lately. The reason is simple: management empowerment. Our management, even at the director level, has empowered our workforce with a lot of opportunities to better themselves as employees and as people. Some of the opportunities that are available to our people are our Safety Task Team, Continuous Improvement Team, K93 Training, as well as various opportunities to get different qualifications that will allow employees to travel to various locations in around the country to perform work for the Navy. These are all things that encourage our workforce to further develop themselves as skilled workers and people. These things also provide many opportunities for networking and interfacing with senior management.”

Billy Davis
M30/X18 Foreman

“Development to me means always moving forward. When you hire into the shipyard your goal is not to stay at the same level that you hired in – you are always looking to move forward. That’s why you always need good mentors to help you help yourself. I have senior nuclear pipe welders that are mentoring the young welders. I am always looking at training with my General Foreman Rob Lane to see what we need to do to get ready for the day when our senior welders start retiring.”

What is working well for your team? “When I get a new welder I let the welder know that we are family and that he can go to any of the senior welders or to me for guidance on any issue that arises on their job. I don’t try to pick one person for a young welder to work with. The welder will go to the people that he feels comfortable working with. It has to be a good match for it to work. I always try to look for what the person excels at and get those qualifications that fit their skills.”
