NNS Holds Employee Town Hall at Kesselring

On Thursday, Aug. 10, Newport News Shipbuilding held a "Building Our Future" Town Hall at the company's Kenneth A. Kesselring site in West Milton, New York. Nearly 300 employees were present to hear remarks from NNS President Jennifer Boykin.

The event was Boykin's first visit to Kesselring. Prior to the town hall, she was given a tour of the site. "It's an impressive facility – with extraordinary work underway," she said.

Similar to previous town hall meetings held earlier this summer, Boykin discussed her vision and future priorities for the company.

"Simply said, my top priorities are people and technology. Here at Kesselring, the work you do is essential to our legacy of 'Always Good Ships.' It's critical that the United States Navy have a thorough and reliable training program to safely and effectively operate its nuclear fleet. It's up to us to keep the prototype reactors maintained and serviced to meet the Navy's training needs," Boykin said. "You may not be building...

Area Educators Participate in Internship at NNS

When Adrian Foster welcomes students back into his classroom at Surry County High School in September, he will be equipped to share information about high-tech career opportunities at Newport News Shipbuilding.

"They don't have to go to a tech company in Silicon Valley, they can be right here developing programs and databases and helping with in-house information technology," said Foster, who teaches technology education. "There is an iDS [integrated Digital Shipbuilding] program. There is engineering. I'm taking that information back to the kids to dispel some of the myths or misunderstandings of what they actually do here."

Foster and 23 other local science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) teachers and professional counselors participated in the Educator Internship Program at NNS this summer. More than 100 educators have completed the two-week program – a partnership involving Career Pathways, Trades Training and Talent Acquisition – since it began in 2012.

During the internship, participants are exposed to all facets of shipbuilding, including engineering, modeling and simulation, augmented reality and hands-on experience with trades. Teachers also see how math and science concepts used at NNS relate to what they are teaching in the classroom.

"I've even worked paint spraying into a mathematics lesson," said Intern Kathryn Kelchner, an eighth grade math teacher at Yorktown Middle School in York County. She was surprised by how much is made in-house and the demanding nature of much of the work.

"They are some of the hardest working people," Kelchner said of the shipbuilders she met.

Seeing the vast career options available at NNS and through The Apprentice School appealed to Intern Hope Sinclair, executive director of Communities in Schools of Hampton Roads, a dropout prevention program that partners with schools across the region.

"My biggest thing is exposing people to the opportunities that are around us," she said, adding that the internship will help her steer students with certain interests or talents toward NNS as a potential employer.

Lois Parson, a school counselor at Lindsay Middle School in Hampton, said she was soaking information from the internship "like a sponge" and planning to take it back to students and fellow educators.

"It's awesome, and I've even been talking to people in the community. It's going to go beyond just my school system," she said. "I see a lot of opportunity for young people here."

Intern Amelia Harveycutter, who teaches math and science at Dozier Middle School in Newport News, pointed out another tangible benefit of the two-week experience.

"I'm just really happy I have an answer for the dreaded question, 'When will we ever use this in real life?'" she said.

Protect Your Eyes During Solar Eclipse

On Monday, Aug. 21, Hampton Roads will experience a solar eclipse, which occurs when the moon blocks any part of the sun.

Newport News Shipbuilding's Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) Division is reminding shipbuilders to avoid looking directly at the sun without special-purpose solar filters, such as "eclipse glasses," during the event. Welding shields and other NNS-provided tinted or shaded eyewear are not approved solar filters.

The eclipse is expected to be visible in the Hampton Roads area between 1:20 p.m. and 4:10 p.m. While parts of the nation will experience a brief total eclipse, Newport News can expect an 80 to 90 percent partial eclipse. Looking directly at the sun without special-purpose solar filters is unsafe, especially during a total eclipse. At any other time, the sun – whether uneclipsed or partially eclipsed – is dangerously bright.

USW and Dependents Can Access the HII Family Health Center Sept. 1

As a result of the union's contract negotiations, members of the United Steelworkers (USW) Union and their dependents enrolled in the Anthem CA PPO medical plan will have access to the HII Family Health Center for non-occupational illnesses and injuries beginning Sept. 1. Eligible union employees and their covered dependents can make appointments for September and beyond starting Aug. 28.

Operated by QuadMed, a third party vendor, the Family Health Center offers comprehensive, confidential and affordable health care to HII employees and their dependents. All medical care provided at the Family Health Center is private and protected. HII does not have access to any private medical records or information related to treatment details. Personal medical information is protected by HIPAA laws that require this information remain private and protected.

Shipbuilders can make appointments by phone at 327-4200; online at www.myquadmedical.com/hii; or from a smartphone using the mobile app called MyQuadMed.

Starting Sept. 1, the on-site CVS Pharmacy at the HII Family Health Center welcomes members of the USW. Members planning to switch to the on-site pharmacy can get a head start by bringing in empty prescription bottles now. The on-site pharmacy staff will work with shipbuilders' current pharmacies to transfer prescriptions, and they will be available for pick up after Sept. 1.

"My family loves the health center. Every employee we have encountered has been warm and welcoming, just what you need when you aren't feeling well. We appreciate this benefit and are constantly amazed at the value we receive for only $15."

Desire'e Vaughan (K07)

"After using the HII Family Health Center, I have come to enjoy its convenience and quick availability. I can almost always make a same-day appointment if I need to see a doctor so I can go right before or after work."

Will Bing (E86)

DID YOU KNOW?

Total solar eclipses are not rare, occurring twice every three years on average. However, a total eclipse of the sun that can be seen across the continental U.S. occurs much less frequently. In fact, the last time a total solar eclipse was visible from coast to coast was in 1918.

Shipbuilder Steering the Way

Industrial Security Analyst Janet Ashley (O15) has spent the past decade supporting security education at Newport News Shipbuilding.

"I'm passionate about security and ensuring shipbuilders are educated about requirements so they can protect sensitive information, whether it be in the form of documents or computer systems," she said.

Earlier this summer, Ashley joined an elite group of security professionals when she passed an exam based on the National Industrial Security Program Operating Manual (NISPOM) to earn the Industrial Security Professional (ISP) certification. She's the only person with the certification at NNS and one of only a few hundred across the nation. The ISP certification is awarded by NCMS Inc. – The Society of Industrial Security Professionals.

"I'm proud to represent a small group of professionals who are dedicated to protecting not only national security but the security of our company as well," she said.

Ashley is responsible for training NNS' 250 department security representatives.

"Security Compliance Programs is a small group of employees. We can't be everywhere, so we depend on the security reps out there in the field," she said.

Ashley also helps create security awareness and education tools for NNS shipbuilders. That knowledge is vital since most of the company's work involves classified contracts. "We're basically protecting the employees, the information and ultimately our nation's warfighter," she said.

...ships here, but you are building the operators of our ships. By doing this, you are helping to build our company's future, and the future of the nuclear Navy. The work you perform each day is vital to our country."

Following remarks, employees were given the opportunity to ask questions. Other members of the NNS executive leadership team were also present to hand out lanyards to employees following the town hall meeting, including Chris Miner, vice president of In-Service Aircraft Carrier Programs, Mary Cullen, vice president of Nuclear Propulsion, Ron Murray, vice president of Quality, and Jennifer Dunn, vice president of Communications.

"To have someone at the very top level of the company come speak with us is very special," said Nuclear Engineering James Hadiger.

"Even though Newport News is several hundred miles away from Kesselring, her visit showed us that she cares, she's paying attention, and the work we are doing is important."

NNS President Jennifer Boykin takes a selfie with members of NNS' leadership team and Kesselring employees following the town hall meeting Aug. 10.

Kesselring Project Manager Marissa Hodge added, "The message I took away from the town hall was – we're here to support you, we've got your back, we want to see you succeed, we want to come here and help you, and we want to hear from you.' It feels great to have the support from Virginia."

Union Carpenter Claude Hebert has been working at Kesselring for 12 years. "It's wonderful to see a woman leading this great company," he said. "I'm excited to see what the future holds."

PEER Program Moves to Human Resources

Newport News Shipbuilding's Professional Enhancement and Enrichment Rotation (PEER) Program is now a part of the Human Resources Division. PEER and Mentoring Program Manager

Wayne Potter will continue to lead the program as he transitions to Human Resources.

Created in 2013 as a rotation and career enhancement program for the Engineering and Design Division, the PEER Program is now open to all high-performing, salaried employees in non-supervisory roles. The program places participants in two-year rotations, which includes four six-month rotations in different departments and divisions throughout the shipyard, and a few off-site locations. In its first four years, the program has graduated 71 participants, and an additional 67 employees are currently enrolled. There are more than 140 host locations available for participants to rotate through.

Participants in the program become members of their host department teams, learning from those they work with and bringing a fresh perspective to the organization. They gain exposure and a better understanding of the host department's work products and processes, and are encouraged to identify and implement process improvements.

"The program provides challenging opportunities for the participants, taking both the employee's and the organization's performance to a higher standard," Potter said.

In addition to on-the-job training, each member of the program participates in a number of learning activities, networking and team-building programs throughout the two-year rotation period, including Crucial Conversations and StrengthsFinder workshops. Each participant is also matched with a mentor through the NNS Mentoring Program. The program culminates with a group capstone project that is presented to senior level staff.

"The PEER Program is just one example of our commitment to provide robust professional development opportunities for employees. It is an investment in our people and in the company's future," said Susan Jacobs, vice president of Human Resources. She discussed the PEER and Mentoring programs at a L.E.A.R.N. event earlier this month.

For more information, contact Potter at 688-1274.

Security Releases FAQs Regarding New NNS Badges

On Sept. 1, Security and Emergency Management will begin issuing new identification badges to all Newport News Shipbuilding employees, contractors and visitors. The new badges are more secure and feature a new design. Here are some frequently asked questions (FAQs) about the badging initiative:

Can employees visit the Access Center and exchange their existing badge for a new one?

No, department security representatives will coordinate distribution of new employee badges and collection of existing badges.

Do I need to have a new employee photo taken prior to receiving my new badge?

No, updated photos are not required to support this initiative.

Is it true, the new badges will not have a hole for my badge clip?

Yes, new badges cannot be punched with a hole for a badge clip – doing so will render them useless. Therefore, employee badges will be distributed with hard plastic cases that protect against damage and can be connected to badge clips or lanyards.

Will the new badges have PERN numbers on them?

Yes, the new badges will have PERN numbers on them.
