CVN Carrier Café Opens in North Yard

A ribbon-cutting ceremony Friday, March 9, marked the official opening of the CVN Carrier Café on the first floor of Bldg. 1744 in the North Yard.

“This is just the beginning of an important effort to improve the quality of life for our shipbuilders,” CVN Program Trade Director Joe Dvorak told employees at the ceremony. Part of Newport News Shipbuilding's initiative to reclaim spaces to benefit shipbuilders, the café serves employees on all three shifts with timeclocks, vending machines, an ice machine, microwaves, picnic tables and computers that allow access to the company's intranet.

“This is really nice. I think it was an excellent idea,” Jeffery Davis (X31) said as he stood in the doorway of the newly opened café.

Food vendors like Bojangles', Chick-fil-A, King's Pizza and Firehouse Subs will serve breakfast and lunch in the Carrier Café. The company is also working to make food vendors available for all three shifts.

Service Desk Wait Times Improve

Earlier this year, a directive that requires all production leadership to hold crew talks each Thursday was issued. T54 Manager Tim Bulles, who is responsible for the Service Desk, also decided to implement weekly crew talks for his area.

“Finding a single opportunity to talk to my entire Service Desk staff at one time has proven to be challenging through the years as calls coming in rarely stop. When I heard about the crew talk initiative across the yard, I decided this was the perfect opportunity to follow suit as the call volume should be lower during this window,” he said. “My team has welcomed this rare opportunity as we use this time to focus on our weekly goals, talk about accountability and involve everyone in Process Improvement discussion while ending the session with a time of recognition.”

Bulles and the Service Desk team have worked to reduce wait time to less than two minutes when shipbuilders call 688-HELP. The team has implemented a new skills-based approach to get callers to a Service Desk agent much faster, which also results in a quicker resolution.

Earlier this year, the Service Desk team achieved the two-minute goal for the first...

Dvorak said NNS is committed to addressing the needs of employees. “These are needs like having a place to park, having a place to rest and eat a meal, and having more opportunities to learn and develop,” he said. “You all deserve that.”

Four shipbuilders – Christina Munn (X18), Dovinia Murrill (X42), Nick Rapoza (X11) and James Alexander (X18) – joined Dvorak and Vice President of Operations Matt Needy to cut the ribbon as attendees yelled, “Reclaimed for you.”

“I’m very impressed,” Munn said. “I love that the company is doing something positive for employees. I think it will boost morale.” She’s also looking forward to expanded options for shipbuilders who work third shift.

Alexander said he appreciates the efforts to improve the quality of life for shipbuilders.

“It’s good that they’re thinking about the people. As they go along in the process, I think they’ll come up with even bigger and better ideas,” he said.

“This is a really nice gesture,” said Murrill. Watch a highlights video of the ribbon-cutting ceremony on MyNNS.

...time in several months. For the past six weeks, the Service Desk has achieved wait times of less than two minutes.

“Crew talks allow us an opportunity to hear what is expected from leadership and center our focus on existing goals and improvements,” said Samuel Hall (T55). “This time also allows me to voice my opinion and hear from other team members. This setting enables us to gather our forces, create a game plan and then man the phones.”

To further improve the caller experience, Bulles and his team will soon offer a “call back” option – which will allow shipbuilders to keep their place in line without waiting on hold – as well as a “chat” interaction option. These improvements are essential as Service Desk call volume is expected to continue to increase as Newport News Shipbuilding undergoes its digital transformation.

Women's History Month: Hector Ramos

March is Women’s History Month. The theme for this year’s Inclusion and Diversity (I&D) monthly recognition campaign is “Unite Our Voices by Speaking Together.” As part of the campaign, four employees will be featured during each recognition month – two from within the featured demographic and two outside of it. Employees will share personal stories, insight and perspectives on what the month means to them. Features will be published in Currents, the NNS to Go app, MyNNS and HII social media channels.

As Hector Ramos (E86) reflects on the person he is today, he says it’s because of one individual very near to his heart. “I’m who I am today because of my mother,” he says. “By overcoming obstacles, she showed me that anything is possible if you chase your dreams. March is a time to celebrate all women who have chased their dreams, overcome challenges and made today better than yesterday – for everyone.”

Though Ramos says his mother’s name won’t be printed in history books as someone who changed the world, he says she will always be celebrated by his family as the one who made their life in the United States possible. “As an immigrant who didn’t speak English, my mom had a lot of challenges she had to overcome each and every day,” he said. “Simple tasks we take for granted like a trip to the mall or grocery store presented major challenges for her.”

Ramos grew up in the small town of Cape Charles on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. His father was a scallop harvester, which required him to be out to sea for long periods of time. “Because my dad was gone a lot, my mother was left alone to raise me and my brother,” he said. “Though the language barrier made it hard for her to make friends and interact with other women, she always ensured we got to school on time, did our homework and had friends. She also taught us to put our family first – one of life’s most important lessons.”

While overcoming challenges, Ramos says that his mother never complained. “She always had a smile on her face even when life was hard,” he said. “To this day she continues to smile, and I can’t thank her enough for putting her personal dreams aside, so that her children could have a better life.”

Ramos is currently a nuclear engineer in the Virginia-Class Submarine Program. View his poster on MyNNS. Employees interested in participating in this year’s I&D campaign are encouraged to visit nns.huntingtoningalls.com/id-campaign-2018.
