Shipbuilders Read to Local Students

Several Newport News Shipbuilding employees spent Thursday morning reading shipyard-themed storybooks to students at Palmer Elementary School in Newport News in support of American Education Week.

Shipbuilders read three books penned by NNS employees: “The Adventures of Ingalls” by Doris McNair (O14), “L’il Tug” by Phyllis Evans (E81) and “Good Ships” by Joe Purvis (E83). McNair, Evans and Purvis won first, second and third place, respectively, in Career Pathways’ New Tools for the Next Class Storybook Contest.

“Not only did shipbuilders have the opportunity to come out to read books and enrich the lives of students, but they also were able to share materials from the New Tools for the Next Class Contest Series,” said Career Pathways Representative Pierrette Swan. “This was an amazing opportunity to show these students the wonderful things going on at Newport News Shipbuilding.”

McNair was among the NNS volunteers who read to students in kindergarten through third grade. “It was very exciting. I like working with kids and helping to inspire them. I like seeing their thoughts and how they react to information,” she said. “I wanted to send the message that we’re all different. We all have unique talents, and we can all do great things when we grow up.”

NNS Shines During Security Assessment

Newport News Shipbuilding received the highest possible security posture rating – SUPERIOR – following a recent Security Vulnerability Assessment at the shipyard.

The Defense Security Service conducted the assessment at NNS Oct. 23-27 to evaluate the effectiveness of the company’s security program to ensure compliance with the National Industrial Security Program Operating Manual (NISPOM). The NISPOM establishes requirements for government contractors to protect classified information.

“The results of this assessment are a testament to the high level of knowledge and professionalism that our employees demonstrate on a daily basis,” said Facility Security Officer John Forlow. “Our SUPERIOR rating is a reflection of a lot of hard work on the part of all of our employees to learn about their security responsibilities and take them seriously.”

He said the security team has worked for the past three years to address vulnerabilities and engage face-to-face with shipbuilders to talk about security. NNS last received a SUPERIOR rating in 2011.

“Our ratings impact how frequently we are assessed, so there is a very real cost savings in having to prepare less frequently for audits,” Forlow said. “Everyone who took part in the preparation, execution, administration or any other facet of this assessment did remarkably well.”

Don't Become a Victim of a Scam

Recently, Newport News Shipbuilding employees have been targeted for a scam of gaining money under false pretenses.

The scam begins with individuals approaching an employee and starting a friendly conversation about working at the shipyard and how they are currently stranded. The individual (sometimes two individuals) ask for a specific amount of money needed to get their vehicle working again. The individual then gives them a name of an active NNS employee and a correct phone number for that employee.

If the employee decides to help the pretending shipbuilder, and then tries to regain the borrowed money by contacting the person from the information given, the person called will not know of the incident and more than likely will have received several other calls of that nature.

Below are tips to help you avoid becoming a victim of a scam:

- Immediately remove your badge when leaving the shipyard or any HII facility.
- Understand that this scam could happen to you at any time and anywhere.
- If possible, take pictures of the subject and license plate of the car being driven.
- Ensure the person you are speaking to has identification to confirm who they are.
- Do not allow the individual(s) to follow you to an ATM or any other place. Do not offer them a ride.
- If you are on or adjacent to an HII facility, call 380-2222.

Shipbuilders Read to Local Students

Elise Feldt (E06/E04/X57), another NNS volunteer, attended Palmer Elementary for kindergarten and first grade. She was happy to share her shipyard pride with students at her former school while also supporting education.

“I love working with kids,” she said. “As an apprentice, I realize how much of an opportunity it is to get an education. It’s especially important to me to see that kids have lots of opportunities to learn and grow.”

Palmer Elementary Assistant Principal Lyndon Hott said having shipbuilders come and read was “great for the kids.”

“Shipbuilding is such a huge industry in Newport News. It’s tremendous to establish these community partnerships,” he said.

L.E.A.R.N. Seeking Leaders

The L.E.A.R.N. Steering Committee is growing and looking for leaders for open positions in 2018. This all-volunteer organization hosts after-work presentations from members of the NNS senior staff. Committee members have an opportunity to develop skills in public speaking, organization, leadership and networking while forming friendships. For more information, visit the L.E.A.R.N. SharePoint site. Interviews for will be conducted in December. To apply, email Deborah Rogers (T51), Carrie Allen (O20) or LEARN@hii-nns.com by Dec. 8.

Recognizing Veterans: StacyAnne Schrier

Newport News Shipbuilding proudly recognizes the contributions of the men and women who have and continue to serve in the U.S. Armed Forces. Throughout the month of November, articles about veteran shipbuilders featured in this month’s inclusion and diversity campaign will be featured in Currents.

Prior to coming to the shipyard, StacyAnne Schrier (O53) spent 30 years in the Navy Reserve. “I served as an Ocean Systems Technician Analyst and a Jet Engine Mechanic working on E2C Hawkeye, C2 Carrier Onboard Delivery and H-53 Sea Dragons,” she said. “I also did security work with the Auxiliary Security Force and worked as full-time security.”

Schrier says the Navy taught her a lot, but one lesson in particular. “No job is worth doing if you don’t do it right the first time around,” she said. “People’s lives are often dependent on your actions – so you have to get it right the first time.”

Once off active duty, Schrier began looking for a post-military career. “A neighbor who was working at NNS suggested that I go to The Apprentice School,” she said. “He gave me information and I began looking into the various trades available. I learned this opportunity would allow me to return to school and also get paid in the process.”

Schrier submitted her application and was accepted as a Welding Services apprentice. She graduated in 2001 and is now a Material Handling Supervisor.

“I’ve been at NNS for 20 years now and I love my job – and the team I work with,” she said. “Since I am unable to continue to serve in a military capacity, being a shipbuilder affords me the opportunity to support and defend my country in a supporting role.”

Design a Logo for New ERG

A new employee resource group is coming to Newport News Shipbuilding, and shipbuilders have a chance to win a prize for designing the group's logo. The Generational Integration Focus Team (GIFT) will work to unify shipbuilders from all generations present at NNS by exploring and understanding the differences that make them unique. The designer of the first place logo will receive $300. The second and third place designers will receive $200 and $100, respectively.

Shipbuilders who would like to participate in the logo contest should submit designs to Britta Brown-Zambrana (K93) or Emmanuel Onafeko (E02) via email by Wednesday, Nov. 22. For more information, contact Brown-Zambrana at 688-2786 or Onafeko at 688-1477.

Third Quarter Security Star Awardee Announced

Newport News Shipbuilding's Security and Emergency Management team recently honored Ed Mack (E04) with the third quarter Security Star award for 2017.

"The team takes great pride in recognizing Mack. His actions reflect a strong commitment in helping to maintain the security of our company, fellow employees, and our nation's warfighter," said Derek Jenkins, director of Security and Emergency Management.

Use Call Boxes During Emergencies

Security and Emergency Management at Newport News Shipbuilding reminds employees that emergency call boxes are available for their safety.

During an emergency situation, employees should push the red button on the box to immediately communicate with NNS Security. Employees can continue pressing the red button to tell officials about the situation. Blue lights affixed to the tops of the boxes ensure they are visible in darkness. Each blue box includes instructions on how to use the emergency call system.

The boxes are located in parking lots on 38th and 45th streets between Huntington Avenue and Warwick Boulevard; Hidens parking lot; and NNS shuttle stops at 65th, 67th and 68th streets.

NNS Shuttle Service Changes Begin Today

In an effort to reduce cycle time, better utilize parking capacity, and increase customer satisfaction, Facilities will make the following changes to the Park-and-Ride Shuttle Service beginning today, Nov. 20:

External Shuttle:

- Shuttles from the Hidens parking lot will only travel to the North Yard and back to Hidens.
- Shuttles from the Bldg. 902/903 parking garage will travel to 50th St., 46th St., 43rd St. and 31st St. and back to the Bldg. 902/903 shuttle stop.

Internal Shuttle:

- A stop has been added at the 50th St. Gate and the north side of Bldg. 1816.

Shuttles that run all day, as well as the shuttles at the end of second shift will continue to service the entire route.

As a reminder, in addition to the Hidens lot, parking spaces on the top decks of Bldg. 902 and 903 garages are available to all employees with any NNS parking decal.

Parking Garage Temporarily Available for NNS Employees

Newport News Shipbuilding employees currently have limited access to the parking garage located at 31st Street and West Avenue. Any NNS parking decal will be honored, however, parking is only permitted on the fifth and sixth decks.

Because it is used to meet government parking requirements under NNS contracts, access to this garage is subject to change as the Navy's demand for parking increases. The additional parking is expected to be available until mid-to-late first quarter 2018. Additional guidance regarding the availability of parking in the 31st Street and West Avenue garage will be issued at the appropriate time. In the meantime, NNS employees are encouraged to take advantage of the additional parking.
