NNS IT Rolling Out New Authentication Process

To remain in compliance with Department of Defense regulations, Newport News Shipbuilding is rolling out a new multi-factor authentication process for computer users to log in to their devices. Currently, NNS uses a single-factor authentication process.

Multi-factor authentication is a method of confirming a user's identity by presenting two or more pieces of evidence or factors. At NNS, users will be required to present a new USB token called a YubiKey and a six-to-eight-character/numeric PIN. No complex password will be required and users can leave the tokens in their computers for their entire shift.

IT will begin the full distribution of YubiKeys – which are about the size of a dime – this month. “We plan to roll them out to up to 7,000 users per month,” said IT Infrastructure Engineer Matt Hayes. YubiKeys are water resistant, dust tight and crush resistant. The tokens are being delivered along with lanyards to managers who will distribute them to users in their groups.

An application called Intercede MyID – which is not related to the MyID shipbuilders use to log in to MyHR – will be pushed to all NNS computers to issue, renew and unlock user tokens.

NNS Hosts Fourth Annual Military Immersion Experience

Eight career counselors representing the Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marine Corps and Navy spent nearly a week in June getting a behind-the-scenes look at Newport News Shipbuilding during the fourth annual Military Immersion Experience.

The program allows the locally based counselors to use their first-hand experience to inform service members about career opportunities at NNS.

NNS Helps Hilton Village Celebrate Centennial

Newport News' Hilton Village on Saturday celebrated its centennial. The neighborhood was constructed in response to a severe housing shortage in the area as Newport News Shipbuilding ramped up production – and hiring – during World War I.

Ron Murray, NNS' vice president of Quality, spoke during the centennial celebration and presented Hilton Village Historian Charles Webb with the original plat for Hilton Village, which was hand-drawn by NNS' Plant Engineering Office 100 years ago.

“Congratulations on 100 years of peace and prosperity. We are proud to have been part of Hilton Village's establishment and we look forward to being a part of its exciting future,” Murray said. Watch a video on MyNNS or the NNS to Go app.

“The folks who are transitioning out of the military are a really good fit for what we do,” said Sultan Camp, NNS’ military liaison. “The challenge is that a lot of them simply don’t know what types of opportunities exist here at Newport News Shipbuilding. This program allows the counselors to go out and essentially be our brand ambassadors.”

During the program, the counselors toured the shipyard, learning about The Apprentice School and Integrated Digital Shipbuilding initiatives. Participants also took part in hands-on trade demonstrations. “This was an eye-opening experience as to what Newport News Shipbuilding and Huntington Ingalls Industries have available for pretty much anyone looking for any type of profession,” said Chief Navy Counselor Joshua Maskerines.

Each of the participating counselors reaches out to roughly 100 service members each month. “If you have the desire to learn, your knowledge, skills and abilities – no matter what they are – can be applied here at the shipyard,” said Robyn Wilson of Joint Base Langley-Eustis.

Camp suggests veterans already working at NNS who want to help bring in more military talent or connect with fellow veterans in the company should consider joining the Veterans Employee Resource Group (VERG).

Hard Hats Save Lives

Deangelo Tyson (X11) was in Newport News Shipbuilding’s Dry Dock 11 in early May when a staging hammer fell from approximately 80 feet above him and struck the top of his hard hat.

Tyson walked away from the incident because he was protected by his hard hat.

“It saved my life,” he said. “It is the reason I can go home and kiss my wife and my kids.”

Representatives from MSA, the company that manufactures NNS’ hard hats, recently visited the shipyard to honor Tyson with the MSA Gold Helmet Award. The award is given to individuals who have been involved in an incident in which their hard hat either saved their life or prevented a serious injury. MSA does this to learn from real-life experiences and share stories like Tyson’s with their employees to remind them that what they do matters.

Joe Sabol, X11, X18 and O68 trade director, and Thomasina Wright, In-Service Aircraft Carrier Program trade director, presented Tyson with a gold helmet and a plaque from MSA. “Thank you for wearing your PPE the right way. We’re thankful because this could’ve been a lot worse,” Sabol told Tyson.

Reflecting on his own experience, Tyson urges fellow shipbuilders to wear their PPE correctly at all times.

Programs Sharpen Supervisory Skills

The Engineering Leadership Standards Program (ELS) and the Foreman Qualifications Standards Program (FQS) are in full swing at Newport News Shipbuilding. This summer, several leaders across the company will complete the ELS Board, which is the last step in the process to complete the program.

Bob Smole (E47) and Robby Richardson (E82) are two employees who recently reached this milestone. Both come from the highly technical world of engineering and both found that the ELS training sharpened their non-technical skills in supervising a team.

“It was really helpful,” Smole said. “Discovering that I can lead people beyond just a technical acumen is a great confidence booster.” He now feels prepared for the next step in his career.

Richardson, who was promoted in 2001, agreed that the ELS program has been vital in preparing him as well. “When I first got promoted, it was more of leadership by survival. This experience gave me a jump start into leadership development.”

They both credit this program for creating an intentional leadership skills training with a practical system that they can use daily. It showcases the commitment NNS has to the ongoing development of its employees’ technical knowledge and soft skills.

“ELS taught me to be more proactive about explaining why we perform certain technical parts of the job,” Richardson said. “It is important for members of my team to understand the ‘why’ behind it all.”

Contact Danny Engle (O25) at 380-7483 for more information about the ELS or FQS programs.

NNS Showcases Laser Scanning at 3D Expo

Newport News Shipbuilding, which has completed more than 700 laser scanning projects within shipyard gates, presented its use of the technology at the SPAR 3D 2018 expo and conference in Anaheim, California.

SPAR 3D is an annual international event that showcases 3D technology and data management in industry. This year, about 2,000 people attended the conference, held June 5-7. NNS and hundreds of other exhibitors displayed their laser scanning technology.

“I learned how other companies are scanning small areas, comparable to a compartment on an aircraft carrier,” said Electrical Engineer Nathan Vandygriff (E63). “I also learned about different types of software that can be used to process and manipulate laser scan data.”

Justin Novak (O68), a metrology supervisor, spoke about the shipyard’s laser scanning, modeling and simulation capabilities at the conference. “Laser scanning can capture the spatial arrangement of a building, worksite, road or room,” he said. “The attendees were very impressed with Newport News Shipbuilding’s specific application of laser scanning to create authoritative data, and the attention to detail regarding accuracy and process.”

Laser scanning is used to aid in ship checks, additive manufacturing, reverse engineering, critical tolerance inspection, facility documentation and Smart Yard initiatives. For more information about laser scanning at the shipyard, contact Justin Novak at 688-8321.

Service Desk Chat Portal to Go Live

A new chat capability will be added to the IT Service Desk beginning July 10. The new service is an addition to the current web portal and the 688-HELP phone line and will:

- Support the company's digital transformation
- Increase productivity through multitasking
- Remove language barriers
- Broaden communication channels
- Support real-time convenience for employees

Hours of operation will be Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m.

HII Awards 100 Scholarships through Annual Scholarship Fund

The HII Scholarship Fund, now in its third year, has awarded 100 pre-kindergarten and post-secondary scholarships for the 2018-2019 school year. To date, nearly 400 scholarships have been awarded or renewed for a total of more than $1 million, providing educational opportunities to 271 children of employees across the Huntington Ingalls Industries enterprise.

Children of all HII employees are eligible to apply for the scholarship fund, with the exception of children of senior executives and those employees who have been with the company for less than two years. Guidelines and applications for the 2019 program will be available early next year.

Guidelines for Returning to Work After Medical Absence

If a shipbuilder is on leave for personal medical reasons for more than seven consecutive days, or a work-related medical absence of one day or more, they must undergo an evaluation at the Newport News Shipbuilding Clinic before returning to work.

“Return-to-work medical evaluations are important for the safety and welfare of the shipbuilder experiencing the medical issue, as well as his or her coworkers,” said Dru Branche, director of Environmental Health and Safety. “While we respect the opinions of our medical community, our clinic staff has a better understanding of our work conditions and can more accurately assess an employee’s ability to return to work safely.”

Branche stressed that return-to-work evaluations are handled at the NNS Clinic inside the shipyard gates and not at the HII Family Health Center, which is operated by a third party.

In addition, employees returning to work with any condition that requires restrictions, including reduced hours or the use of durable medical equipment such as crutches or splints, must be evaluated at the NNS Clinic. Employees returning to work after experiencing any of the following conditions must also be evaluated in the clinic:

- A seizure disorder
- Treatment for a psychological disorder, including substance abuse treatment
- Surgery for a heart-related condition
- Cancer surgery, not including skin cancer surgery; however, if Radcon qualified, any diagnosis of cancer
- An ambulance transport from work for emergency treatment
- A significant musculoskeletal injury (i.e., back, neck, joint and ligament surgeries)
- A hospitalization of three or more days, excluding birth of a child

The company requires specific return-to-work certification and medical documentation at the time of the evaluation. For more information about personal injury or illness, contact Leave of Absence Management at (866) 667-5627 or 688-3800. For more information about work-related injury or illness, contact Workers’ Compensation at (800) 272-2884 or 380-2647. For additional information visit the Leave of Absence website on MyNNS.

NNS Supports Virginia Master Naturalist Program

As a Virginia Master Naturalist, Dave Lauthers (E83) leads a member-directed project to collect and test James River water quality samples during the summer months. The samples are tested for bacterial growth, and the data collected are passed along to local officials and used to determine river health.

Newport News Shipbuilding recently donated insulated lunch bags to the sampling project. The bags will be repurposed to help cool the water samples until they are received at the laboratory for analysis. To learn more about the Virginia Master Naturalists, visit www.virginiamasternaturalist.org.

Are You Prepared for a Time-Keeping Audit?

As a government contractor, Newport News Shipbuilding is regularly audited by the Defense Contract Audit Agency (DCAA). DCAA is focused on the company's time charging controls and how well the workforce knows where to find time charging resources, including policy SSO No. 10-403, for example.

The Labor Compliance Department (O73) is dedicated to an initiative that provides insight by highlighting areas for improvement and allows efforts to be focused where they are most needed. Labor Compliance conducts more than 5,000 internal floor audits during the year to serve as an educational resource, ensure compliance with time-keeping policies and regulations, and prepare the workforce for potential DCAA audit.

Any shipbuilder can be audited by DCAA on the Time Keeping Policy at any time. Contact Labor Compliance at O73LaborCompliance@hii-nns.com for questions about time-keeping policies and procedures or for assistance in preparing for a potential DCAA audit.

Shipbuilders Earn Security Star Awards

Newport News Shipbuilding's Security and Emergency Management team awarded Arthur Correll (E46) and Timothy Martin (E46) with first quarter Security Star awards.

Correll was recognized for his many contributions to derivative classification interpretations at NNS. His contributions during the past decade have directly impacted the number of Industrial Security and Information System findings in the company's Security Vulnerability Assessment every year.

Martin was awarded for taking action when he noticed an envelope marked "Confidential-RD" left unattended in the mail. He took possession of the document, called his department security representative to report the incident and turned the document over to the investigating officer.

"The team takes great pride in recognizing Correll and Martin. Their actions reflect a strong commitment to helping to maintain the security of our company, fellow employees, and our nation's warfighter," said Derek Jenkins, director of Security and Emergency Management.
