HII President and CEO Meets Scholarship Recipients

Scholarships can change lives. That's what Huntington Ingalls Industries President and CEO Mike Petters told a group of HII Scholarship Fund recipients and their parents during a recent meeting at The Apprentice School.

"I wouldn't be standing here with you all today if I hadn't had scholarships," he told recipients. "My hope is that someday down the road, you'll be able to stand in places like this and talk about how important scholarships are to you."

The HII Scholarship Fund awarded 100 pre-kindergarten or post-secondary scholarships for the 2018-2019 school year. The scholarship fund provides financial assistance to qualified and selected dependent children of HII employees who are pursuing a post-secondary college or technical/vocation degree and dependent children who are enrolled in quality pre-kindergarten school readiness programs. Petters declined his annual salary, but for $1, to fund the program for the third year in a row.

Individual award amounts range from $1,500 for selected students enrolled in a two-year college program to $3,000 for selected students enrolled in a four-year program. The post-secondary awards are renewable for recipients who remain in good academic standing. The fund also awards preschool scholarships of up to $3,000.

NNS Awarded Advance Planning Contract for USS John C. Stennis RCOH

Newport News Shipbuilding was awarded an advance planning contract for the refueling and complex overhaul (RCOH) of USS John C. Stennis (CVN 74).

The contract, which is initially funded for one year and has a base value of $187.5 million, includes engineering, design, material procurement and fabrication, documentation, resource forecasting, and pre-overhaul inspections. Future modifications could extend the period of performance to 30 months and increase the contract value if additional options are exercised. Planning is scheduled to begin this month.

Shipbuilder Survives Close Call

It began as a normal day for Sergei “Surge” Brisson (X18). It was late April, and Brisson had come in to work at Newport News Shipbuilding’s Steel Production Facility just as he does every day. However, after lunch, he knew something wasn’t right.

“I thought I was having really bad heartburn,” Brisson said. What he first thought was indigestion turned out to be a heart attack.

When Brisson started experiencing intense chest pain, shortness of breath and sweating, he went into a nearby office to sit down and get some water. At the same time, X10 General Foreman Johnny Duke – who had worked with Brisson in the past – happened to walk by on his way to a meeting.

“I know him. He doesn’t sit down on the job,” Duke said. “That’s what caught my attention.” After Brisson described his symptoms, Duke called X18 General Foreman Bill Malonson. By the time Malonson arrived, Brisson was attempting to return to work.

Malonson asked Brisson a few questions. “He had a lot of the classic heart attack symptoms,” Malonson said. “Once he said it felt like somebody was sitting on his chest, there was no way we were going to let him walk out on that shop floor.”

Malonson called for an ambulance, and X10 Superintendent Bruce Hufton came in and talked with Brisson as he waited. Brisson was transported to Riverside Regional Medical Center via ambulance.

At the hospital, doctors discovered a 100 percent blockage in Brisson’s left anterior descending artery. “They call it the widowmaker,” he said. He spent three days in the hospital and nearly three months recovering at home after doctors cleared the blockage and inserted a stent.

Brisson recently returned to work. Although he is forced to move slower than his normal pace, he’s glad to be back. “I had never been out of work that long,” he said. “It’s nice to be able to provide for my family again.”

For those who insisted on calling for help, Brisson has “lots and lots of gratitude.” He warned fellow shipbuilders not to take chances with their health. “If you think something is wrong, tell somebody and get help,” he said. “If I was any more stubborn, I wouldn’t be here right now.”

Duke and Malonson both agreed. “No one wants to get sick – especially at work – and I understand not wanting to broadcast to the world that you’re not feeling well. But you can’t look after someone if you don’t know what’s going on,” Malonson said.

Shipbuilders who experience medical distress, or those who notice someone else in need, should notify NNS first responders immediately by calling *911 or 380-2222.

HII President and CEO Meets Scholarship Recipients

Petters met with Benjamin Gamor (E57) and his daughters, Louisa and Yvette. Louisa, who recently earned a biochemistry degree at Virginia Commonwealth University, is a two-time HII Scholarship recipient. Yvette is a recipient this year and recently graduated as valedictorian of her high school class. She’s headed to the University of Virginia to study biochemistry.

“I am an Apprentice School graduate. That program offered a great opportunity to study and learn on company time. Now, it’s almost like they’ve extended that to my family. I was very excited, and I hope my son will also be able to enjoy this,” Gamor said. “It’s a great honor.”

Chrysany Collier (E81) and her daughter, Cilicia, also met with Petters. Cilicia was awarded a preschool scholarship.

“Education is key to success,” Collier said. “I know of companies that offer scholarships to older kids who are in college, but I don’t know of any other company that gives out preschool scholarships. It’s pretty amazing, and it shows how much Mr. Petters cares about education and our kids.”

Children of all HII employees are eligible to apply for the scholarship fund, with the exception of children of senior executives and those employees who have been with the company for less than two years. Guidelines and applications for the 2019 program will be available in early next year.

Career Pathways Hosts "Ready 2 Work" Program

Newport News Shipbuilding's Career Pathways recently hosted seven high school juniors and seniors from the "Ready 2 Work" program, a partnership between VersAbility Resources and the Boys and Girls Clubs of the Virginia Peninsula.

"Ready 2 Work" is a summer workforce development program that prepares students with disabilities and those who are considered at-risk for today's competitive job market. NNS has supported the program for several years.

The students visited The Apprentice School, where they participated in a duct tape boat-building competition, learned about the shipyard, and saw hands-on demonstrations from Material Science, Modeling and Simulation and Dimensional Control.

"It was a rewarding experience. The kids seemed to be intrigued by the demos and asked questions about the many steps involved in the paint process," said Lawrence Nichols (E33), who volunteered at this event. "My favorite moment was getting back-to-back questions as the demos occurred. The students were genuinely interested and wanted to explore as much as they could."

"The planning stage is critically important to the overall success of an engineering and construction project of this magnitude," said Chris Miner, vice president of In-Service Aircraft Carrier Programs. "This contract allows us to prepare for each step in the overhaul process from preparing for the ship's arrival at Newport News to its redelivery back to the Navy."

Christened in 1993 and delivered to the Navy in 1995, Stennis will be the seventh Nimitz-class carrier to undergo an RCOH, representing 35 percent of all maintenance and modernization completed during its 50-year service life.

The RCOH is scheduled to begin in January 2021.

New Onboarding and Offboarding Modules Coming Soon

The Human Resources and Administration Division is launching new onboarding and offboarding modules in MyHR on Aug. 20. This new technology will reduce the use of paper forms and expedite the hiring process.

The onboarding system supports a welcoming environment for new hires by connecting them with the right information at the right time. This module enables hiring managers to connect with a new hire even before their first day with a pre-day one engagement e-mail. All new hire onboarding forms will be electronically filled out and signed without the hassle of coming onsite.

The offboarding module will allow managers to electronically initiate the termination process and complete the termination checklist.

Training webinars on the new modules are available for managers on Aug. 16, 17, 20 and 21. Sign up on the MyHR website.

Digital Shipbuilding Made Possible Aboard USS George Washington

Shipbuilders now have wireless internet access on USS George Washington (CVN 73). Information Technology technicians recently installed access points to make Wi-Fi available on company phones and tablets. A wireless internet connection will enable shipbuilders to complete digital work during the aircraft carrier's overhaul. Employees can check emails and digital drawings in different locations on the ship.

"Having constant Wi-Fi connection increases performance and production," said Michael Chowaniec (T54), a telecommunication technician.

Wi-Fi signal does not penetrate well through steel, causing challenges when engineering the aircraft carrier's wireless network. The quality of the signal in needed areas of the ship depends on the placement and location of the access points.

"The vision is shipbuilders will have Wi-Fi to use in daily duties whether on a platen, aircraft carrier or submarine," said Joey Martin (T54), network communications manager. "Wireless enables the workforce to access all applications that would typically be done behind the desk. This allows for instant communication and feedback without ever leaving the job site."

The telecommunication technicians worked with the trades departments to ensure they were building the network to the needs of craftsmen and craftswomen, and in locations where wireless internet would work.

"Having Wi-Fi aboard the ship allows our foremen and mechanics to stay connected to various communication tools," said X32 Lead General Foreman Jason Ipock, who served as the In-Service Carriers production trade integrated digital shipbuilding, or iDS, lead during Wi-Fi installation. "The ability to pull up work assignments on tablets, while working on the Deck Plate, allows our craftsmen and women to get the latest information. They can stay focused on their work and create a first-time quality product."

The next Wi-Fi installation project will take place on Platen 19 in the coming weeks.

NOTICE: Personal Camera-Enabled Device Policy

Recently, photos taken by Newport News Shipbuilding employees inside of the shipyard have been posted to public social media channels. Taking photos on shipyard property with a personal device is a violation of the company's personal camera-enabled device (PCED) policy, which prohibits the use of camera and video features on personal camera-enabled devices while on NNS property, including parking lots and off-site buildings. Violations may result in confiscation of the device and disciplinary action, up to and including termination.

Security is currently looking into these photos. If employees are found to have violated the policy, corrective actions will be taken and employees will be held responsible for their actions.

As a reminder, shipbuilders who witness an individual taking unauthorized photos and/or video should immediately notify their supervisor and call the Security Command Center at 380-4031 to report the unauthorized activity.

New Tags Keep Track of Material

Accurately tracking material is important at a facility as large as Newport News Shipbuilding. That's why a team of shipbuilders has been working with vendors for the past two years to install infrastructure to test asset tracking.

Reusable tags are being installed on material that will require preventative maintenance at the shipyard. Several "fixed readers" have been installed at locations surrounding Dry Dock 12. The readers track the battery-powered tags in their area, allowing shipbuilders to see the material as it moves from one location to another.

Using live data, shipbuilders can run reports that show where components were last identified before anyone is sent out to perform the required maintenance. This prevents teams from being dispatched to a location to find that the component requiring maintenance has been moved. "If items are not where we're telling the maintenance teams to go, then we're wasting their time," said Dan Isaacson (O52), who works on the Preventative Maintenance team.

For the system to work, the tags must stay

Kyle Davis (O52) installs a tag that will track an asset as it is moved around the shipyard. Photo by Ashley Cowan with the assets. Tags often start off in plastic bags, along with shipping documents, that are attached to the containers. Later, the tags hang on the assets so they may be tracked around the yard even after the container is discarded. If tags must be moved or removed – or if they are found unattached – shipbuilders are asked to contact the Preventative Maintenance team at 688-8109.

AROUND THE YARD

NOTICE: Enhanced Security at NNS

The U.S. Marine Corps Security Force is arriving at Newport News Shipbuilding this month to assist the shipyard in providing enhanced security. This enhancement focuses on measures during the Refueling and Complex Overhaul (RCOH) of USS George Washington (CVN 73). Shipbuilders should follow the guidelines listed below when interacting with the Marines or NNS Security personnel.

You Should:

- Promptly follow all instructions received from the Marines or NNS Security.
- Obey all security signs posted on or around facilities protected by the Marines. Individuals who violate these secured areas are subject to being treated as an intruder and may be detained for further investigation. Violations may also result in disciplinary action, up to and including discharge from the company.
- Report any security violations, suspicious activity or threats to NNS Security personnel, or call the Security Command Center at 380-4031.

You Should Not:

- Attempt to converse with, touch, surprise or closely approach an armed Marine.
- Make offensive comments or joke about assets the Marines are protecting, or attempt to position yourself between Marine personnel and these assets.
- Loiter near assets protected by Marines or any Marine facility.
- Leave bookbags, packages, etc. unattended in the vicinity of the Marines or the assets they are protecting.

During Drills or Alerts:

- Stay clear of Marine and NNS Security response forces and do not make any threatening gestures.
- Stand fast and follow the directions of the Marines and NNS Security personnel.
- Be safe and await instructions from:
 - NNS Security
 - Your immediate supervisor
 - Ship's Force (if shipboard or in dry dock)

The Marines will treat all personnel in a courteous but convincing manner. Shipbuilders should report concerns about interactions with Marines to their immediate supervisor.

USS Gerald R. Ford Has New Commanding Officer

Capt. John J. Cummings relieved Capt. Richard C. McCormack and assumed duties as commanding officer of USS Gerald R. Ford (CVN 78) during a change of command ceremony on Aug. 10.

McCormack, a native of Winchester, Massachusetts, and a 1990 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, assumed command in April 2016 and led Ford through many of the ship's "firsts." During his nearly two-and-a-half year tour, McCormack led the Navy's newest and most advanced aircraft carrier through delivery, commissioning and a nearly yearlong test and evaluation process that brought a tremendous amount of knowledge to the Ford-class program.

Cummings, a native of Sharon, Massachusetts, and a 1990 graduate of Bates College, is Ford's third commanding officer. He previously served as executive and commanding officer of the VFA-11 "Red Rippers" aboard USS Harry S. Truman (CVN 75); as executive officer of USS Nimitz (CVN 68); and as commanding officer of USS Anchorage (LPD 23).

Ford is currently undergoing a 12-month post-shakedown availability and maintenance period at Newport News Shipbuilding.

SHIPs Network Members Tour Tugboat

As part of SHIPs Network's learning, engagement and development program, members can participate in a variety of "Tourapalooza" tours. A group recently enjoyed a view of Newport News Shipbuilding that few have the opportunity to see during a tugboat tour.

The group enjoyed a beautiful day on the water and came away with knowledge of all of the critical jobs performed by NNS tugboats.

Participants were grateful to Capt. Allen Sutton and the rest of the tugboat crew for an incredible learning experience. "The tugboat crew was fantastic, and I enjoyed meeting all my temporary deck mates. We didn't want to come back," said Michael Boyle (O20).

Shanna Parker (X76) also said she had an awesome time during the tour. "This was a great tour, and I'm glad I had an opportunity to go. Thanks to all who put this together," she said.
